Introduction

Both Foundry Dit and Dat families are fonts based on the same concept of an integral dot matrix grid system as Foundry Plek and Flek; Foundry Dat differs in that it also has this same grid matrix in the background of the letters. Foundry Dit has the exact same essential letterforms and also works as a correspondence font with a 'typewriter font' effect.

With an oblong, lozenge shape Foundry Dit and Dat appears soft, padded and has been created with a common horizontal dash grid structure for precise layering when characters are superimposed. Dat's integrated background aligns vertically and horizontally, when set solid, forming a continuous pattern.

The characters can, also be offset to make compositional shapes – in the process becoming images – a graphic language with total integration of form and function. Dit functions as a legible correspondence font, with a 'typewriter' feel.

Like Foundry Plek and Flek, the 5 x 9 grid system allows the lozenge shapes to vary in size but still adhere strictly to the grid so that you can maneuver one text box exactly over each other to build up various patterns and colour schemes. The name Dit and Dat came from an off-the-cuff remark David made in response to Foundry Plek and Flek as to what we should name the new font. Dit and Dat, (This and That in Dutch).

Foundry Dit and Dat families include: Light, Regular, Medium and Bold weights – with the addition of a series of dashes to extend the grid vertically and horizontally. These two font families allow you to explore a whole new graphic language that can be developed, create and play with.

Foundry Dat

Light

A specimen of the Foundry Dat typeface in the Light weight. The text 'Foundry Dat' is rendered in a light green color. The letters are composed of horizontal and vertical dashed lines, with some solid segments. The overall appearance is delicate and airy.

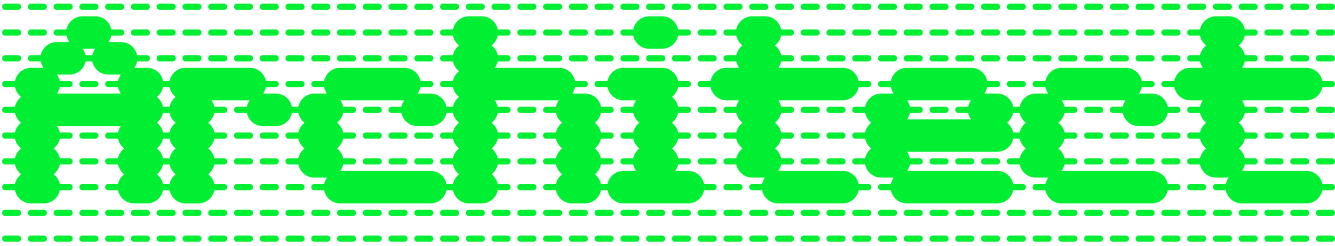

Regular

A specimen of the Foundry Dat typeface in the Regular weight. The text 'Foundry Dat' is rendered in a light green color. The letters are composed of horizontal and vertical dashed lines, with some solid segments. The overall appearance is balanced and clear.

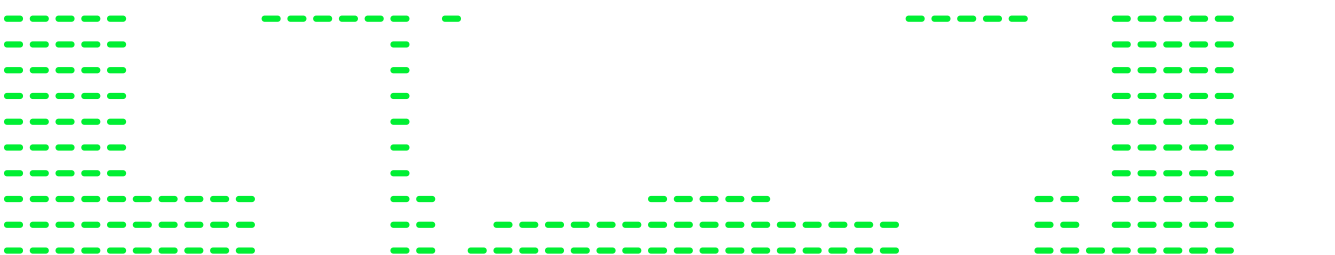

Medium

A specimen of the Foundry Dat typeface in the Medium weight. The text 'Foundry Dat' is rendered in a light green color. The letters are composed of horizontal and vertical dashed lines, with some solid segments. The overall appearance is bold and prominent.

Bold

A specimen of the Foundry Dat typeface in the Bold weight. The text 'Foundry Dat' is rendered in a light green color. The letters are composed of horizontal and vertical dashed lines, with some solid segments. The overall appearance is very bold and impactful.
